The Hon. Mr. Justice P. M. LAURENCE (Chairman);

The Hon. Mr. Justice W. H. SOLOMON; and

The Hon. Mr. Justice A. W. FAWKES.

Secretary:

E. R. ROPER.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY VISCOUNT GLADSTONE, P.C., . G.C.M.G., GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY.

1. The first delimitation of constituencies for the House of Assembly in the Parliament of the Union, and the Provincial Councils of the several Provinces, was effected by a Commission, appointed previous to Union under the provisions of the South Africa Act, 1909, which reported to Your Excellency, in terms of section 42, on your assumption of the office of Governor-General.

The former Commission.

2. Section 41 of the same Statute provides that "as soon as may be after every quinquennial census, the Governor-General-in-Council shall appoint a Commission consisting of three Judges of the Supreme Court of South Africa to carry out any re-division which may have become necessary as between the different electoral divisions in each Province, and to provide for the allocation of the number of members to which such Province may have become entitled under the provisions of this Act. In carrying out such re-division and allocation the commission shall have the same powers and proceed upon the same principles as are by this Act provided in regard to the original division." The principles therein referred to are laid down in sections 32-34, 38-43, and 71 of the Act.

Statutory basis of the present Commission.

3. The present Commission having been duly constituted, after the completion of the quinquennial census, taken in 1911, had therefore two duties to perform: firstly, "to carry out any re-division which may have become necessary as between the different electoral divisions in each Province"; and secondly, "to provide for the allocation of the number of members to which such Province may have become entitled under the provisions of the Act."

Its duties.

Allocation of members :
quota of the Union.

4. It may be convenient in the first place to consider the second branch of the inquiry, i.e. the number of members to be allocated to each Province. This depends on the provisions of sections 33 and 34. The quota of the Union, as defined by section 34 (i), is obtained by dividing the number of European male adults within the Union, as ascertained at the census of 1904 (section 34, clause vii) by the number of members of the first House of Assembly. The figures are 349,837 and 121 respectively and the quotient thus arrived at is 2891. This is, therefore, the quota of the Union, and will so remain, subject to any amendment of the Act effected in conformity with the provisions of section 152.

Statutory provisions.

5. Clauses (ii) to (iv) of section 34 provide as follows :—

“(ii) In nineteen hundred and eleven, and every five years thereafter, a census of the European population of the Union shall be taken for the purposes of this Act.

“(iii) After any such census the number of European male adults in each Province shall be compared with the number of European male adults as ascertained at the census of nineteen hundred and four, and, in the case of any Province where an increase is shown, as compared with the census of nineteen hundred and four, equal to the quota of the Union or any multiple thereof, the number of members allotted to such Province in the last preceding section shall be increased by an additional member or an additional number of members equal to such multiple, as the case may be.

“(iv) Notwithstanding anything herein contained, no additional member shall be allotted to any Province until the total number of European male adults in such Province exceeds the quota of the Union multiplied by the number of members allotted to such Province for the time being, and thereupon additional members shall be allotted to such Province in respect only of such excess.”

6. The result of the census of 1911 was as follows :—

European Male Adults.	1904.	1911.	Increase.	Decrease.
Cape	167,546	151,635	—	15,911
Natal	34,784	30,434	—	4,350
Transvaal	106,493	133,771	27,278	—
Orange Free State ...	41,014	45,361	4,347	—

Census of 1911.

This, it should be mentioned, is the net result of the last census, after deducting members of His Majesty's regular forces in terms of clause (vi) of the above section.

7. The Provinces of the Cape and Natal both show a substantial decrease, in respect of the number of European male adults, as compared with the last census. That of the Free State, on the other hand, shows a substantial increase; but, in terms of clause (iv) of the section, that Province is not entitled to any additional representation "until the total number of European male adults in such Province exceeds the quota of the Union multiplied by the number of members allotted to such Province for the time being." In other words, and in view of the specific provisions on the subject contained in clause (iii), the figure required for an additional member is $2891 \times 18 = 52,038$, while the present figure is 45,361.

The Cape, Natal, and Free State.

8. None of these Provinces therefore are entitled to additional representation; under the provisions of section 33 their representation cannot at present be decreased; and there is therefore no change, so far as they are concerned, in the provincial allocation for which, under section 41, the Commission have to provide.

No change in provincial allocation.

9. There remains the Province of the Transvaal, which shows a net increase of 27,278 and is therefore entitled under the provisions of the Act to nine additional members ($2891 \times 9 = 26,019$). The result is that the number of members in the next House of Assembly and Provincial Councils will be as follows :—

	House of Assembly.	Provincial Council.
Cape	51	51
Natal	17	25
Transvaal	45	45
Orange Free State ...	17	25

The Transvaal : additional members.

10. The quota and maximum and minimum of voters for each electoral division in each Province, under the provisions of section 40, clause (3), will

Number of electors in each Province.

11. It will be observed that, as one result of the operation of the statutory provisions above recited, while the quota at the Cape and in the Transvaal were at the first general election very similar, at the next the former will greatly exceed the latter and is, in fact, higher than the quota of the Union. This result is attributable to the existence of two different methods of arriving at the quota. So far as the number of representatives of each Province is concerned, it depends on the quota of the Union and the European male adult population ; so far as concerns the electoral divisions, it depends on the number of electors in each Province, which, according to the last registration, as compared with that on which the former delimitation was based is as follows :—

		Increase.
Cape ...	148,556	6,189
Transvaal ...	115,055	17,312
Natal (H.A.) ...	29,400	1,647
" (P.C.) ...	29,737	2,122
Orange Free State	39,816	3,581

It will thus be seen that the Cape electorate has increased to an extent exceeding one-third of the corresponding increase in the Transvaal, but, while the representation of the latter Province in the Union Parliament is very substantially increased, that of the former remains unchanged.

The Cape and the Transvaal.

12. If, as between the two larger Provinces, the quota of the Union were taken as the basis of representation, that of the Cape would remain at fifty-one while that of the Transvaal would be increased, not to forty-five, but to barely forty. If the electorate were taken, the Cape representation remaining at fifty-one, the result would be the same ; or, taking that of the Transvaal at forty-five, that of the Cape, instead of fifty-one, would be fifty-eight. Were the principle of equal electoral areas to be adopted throughout the Union, with a House of 130 members the quota would be 2560, and the number of representatives for each Province, taking the nearest unit, would be : For the Cape fifty-eight, the Transvaal forty-five, the Orange Free State sixteen, and Natal eleven.

13. It will be seen that, both at the Cape and in Natal, while there has been a decrease in the number of European male adults, as compared with 1904, there is an increase in the number of voters as compared with 1909. The figures for the last three Cape registrations—in 1907, 1909, and 1911—are 152,131, 142,367, and 148,556 respectively. It may also be noticed that in Natal the number of voters for the Provincial Council Divisions slightly exceeds that for the Parliamentary Divisions, a fact attributable to the system there prevalent of plural voting, under which a certain number of voters may possess qualifications in two places situated in the same Parliamentary but in different Provincial Divisions.

The Cape
and Natal.

14. Having thus provided, in terms of section 41, for the allocation of the number of members to which each Province is entitled, the Commission had next to proceed, as required by the same section, "to carry out any re-division which may have become necessary as between the different electoral divisions in each Province." The Transvaal Province having to be divided into forty-five instead of thirty-six constituencies, the whole scheme had to be recast, involving changes of a very extensive character. In the other Provinces re-division was necessary when any division, as at present constituted, exceeded the maximum above or fell short of the minimum below the provincial quota, as specified in paragraph 10. In the Cape Province it appeared that three divisions of Cape-town (Harbour, Gardens, and Castle) and the division of Paarl exceeded the maximum, while those of Colesberg and Somerset had fallen below the minimum. In Natal, so far as the House of Assembly is concerned, Weenen alone fell below the minimum, and no division exceeded the maximum, but various changes, as mentioned below, were requisite in the case of the Provincial Council Divisions. In the Orange Free State all the divisions remained within the statutory limits.

Application of statutory principles.

15. It may be added that, while perhaps these were the only cases in which re-division was "necessary" in the strict sense of the word, such re-division inevitably entailed many consequential alterations elsewhere. Moreover, the Commission were of opinion that the word "necessary" should not be too strictly construed. If in any case, owing to changing circumstances or altered conditions, or well-grounded objections to the operation of existing arrangements, it was established to their satisfaction, in view of the various matters to which, under section 40 (3), the Commissioners were required to give "due consideration," that alterations were distinctly desirable, they conceived it to be their duty in view of the last paragraph of section 41 to give effect to that view. In dealing with the various problems which presented themselves, the Commission had to be guided by the principles laid down in the above-mentioned clause of section 40, the construction and application of which was fully discussed in the Report of the previous Commission, to whose observations on the subject we beg leave to refer.

Existing electoral boundaries.

16. The members of the present Commission, it may here be stated, were specially impressed, in view of the brief interval which has elapsed since the previous delimitation, with the importance of endeavouring to preserve, so far as possible, the "existing electoral boundaries"—section 40, clause 3 (d)—which had been so recently constituted with careful regard to all the factors mentioned in that clause. It seemed eminently desirable, for reasons on which it would be superfluous to expatiate, that such boundaries should for the present be interfered with as little as possible. The Commission were of opinion that the association of groups for political purposes should, so far as practicable, remain undisturbed, even in cases where, owing for instance to increased or diminished population, other arrangements, assigning a greater or smaller number of voters to this or that division, might, had the matter been res integra, have appeared to be in closer statistical conformity with the principle indicated by paragraph (e) of the same clause.

17. The Commission believe, as the result of many representations received, that this view is very generally entertained in the constituencies themselves. There have been a certain number of applications for the consolidation of units at present separated; but "please leave us alone" has been the sentiment more generally expressed. Should the Legislature be in sympathy with this feeling, it may be deserving of consideration whether, in order the better to give effect to it, a somewhat wider discretion—say 20 per cent. above or below the quota—might not be allowed to the next Commission. This would certainly simplify their task and, it is conceived, might obviate the necessity of frequent changes of a minor character, calculated to produce much local dissatisfaction.

Local opinion:
the question of margin.

18. It may not be irrelevant to mention, in support of this suggestion, that the provisions of the South Africa Act on this subject appear to have been based on those of the Commonwealth Electoral Act, 1902-1911, providing for the delimitation of electoral divisions in the various States. The matters to which, by section 16 of that Statute, the Commissioners are required "to give due consideration" are identical with those specified in our own Act, with the exception that, in the latter, "(e) sparsity or density of population" takes the place of "(e) boundaries of State electorates." The section of the Australian Act provides that the quota must not "be departed from to a greater extent than one-fifth more or one-fifth less."

The Commonwealth Electoral Act.

19. The Commission have had an opportunity of consulting the reports of the Commissions appointed under that Act, for the redistribution of seats in the several States, presented last year to the Governor-General of the Commonwealth. From these it may be gathered that, speaking generally, the practice has been, although there is no express instruction to that effect, to constitute divisions with a larger electorate in the urban than in the rural areas. In the sixteen country divisions of New South Wales, for instance, the quota being 34,657, the numbers range from 29,269 to 35,536, in the eleven metropolitan and sub-metropolitan divisions from 35,118 to 37,795. It will be noticed that the Australian Commonwealth constituencies contain about fourteen times as many electors as those of the Union, the number of members of the commissions.

House of Representatives being seventy-two, as compared with one hundred and thirty in the next House of Assembly, and the Australian principle being that the Lower House should consist of double the number of members of the Senate. It should not, however, be forgotten that in Australia there is no electoral disability on the ground of sex.

Effects of the quinquennium.

20. It may here be pointed out that, while section 41 of the Act provides for a fresh delimitation after every quinquennial census, section 45 provides for quinquennial Parliaments. The first Parliament was elected in 1910; the first census of the Union was taken in 1911. The result will be that, so long as each Parliament lives its normal life, each delimitation will have to be effected some three years previous to its dissolution. Under the present law, and the proposed new law on the subject, two intermediate registrations will probably supervene—in Natal, there is at present an annual registration—doubtless entailing considerable variations from the figures on which the scheme framed by the Commission is based. In order to interfere as little as possible with existing electoral boundaries, it has been found necessary in some instances to constitute divisions somewhat closely approximating to the statutory maximum or minimum, and it may well happen that, before the ensuing election, as the result of subsequent registrations, these limits may in some cases be infringed.

The case of

21. These considerations are well illustrated by the case of the Cape Peninsula, the delimitation of which, owing to its topographical and statistical features, has always been a matter of extreme complexity. On the previous occasion, after prolonged investigation of the problem, the Commission were reluctantly constrained to create eight constituencies, seven of which—Harbour (3202), Central (3202), Gardens (3202), Castle (3203), Woodstock (3201), Liesbeek (3202) and Newlands (3202) were all within nine units of the maximum (3210), while South Peninsula (3158) fell only very slightly below it. The demarcation of seven urban or suburban divisions, practically identical in numbers, with reasonably clear and convenient boundaries, was a most intricate and laborious task, a sort of tour de force, which the present Commission felt no inclination to attempt de novo. It had, moreover, been necessary to transfer, to Malmesbury and Stellenbosch respectively, certain field cornetcies of the Cape Division, which, in accordance with the principles enunciated in section 40 (3) (a) and (b) would have been more suitably grouped with Peninsular constituencies. The new register moreover shows an increase of nearly 2000 voters in the present eight Divisions—from 25,572 to 27,450. Were these divided into eight constituencies, averaging, say, 3300 each, there would be a surplus of 1050 voters, who could only be transferred to Malmesbury. But as the latter electorate already comprises 893 voters resident in the Cape Division, the obvious result would be that Malmesbury itself would practically be transformed into a ninth urban constituency, including over 1900 voters, or nearly two-thirds of the entire electorate, residing not in the Division of Malmesbury but in that of the Cape.

22. Notwithstanding these grave objections, a scheme for the whole Province was prepared, at an early stage of the investigation, on this basis, and also an alternative scheme, by which an additional Peninsular division was created, and the voters previously transferred to Malmesbury and Stellenbosch (with the exception of one small field cornetcy, which it was ultimately found to be statistically impracticable to withdraw from Stellenbosch) brought back to their former and normal place among their co-electors of the Cape Division. On the whole, after very careful deliberation, the latter scheme was considered preferable and adopted as a basis; but it had the inevitable disadvantage of necessitating the elimination of one of the present rural constituencies, in another part of the Province, entailing consequential changes of a far-reaching character. The division abolished is that of Jansenville, a constituency of comparatively recent creation. Had the Commission been empowered to assign one additional member to the Province, say fifty-two to the Cape and forty-four to the Transvaal—a distinctly less inequitable proportion, as already pointed out, than that resulting from the automatic operation of the provisions of the Act—it is obvious that many difficulties, and probably some sense of grievance, might have been avoided. The scheme which has actually been framed, in view of the apparent tendency to a somewhat rapid increase in the electorate of the Peninsula, affords room for some expansion in the future. It is believed, speaking broadly, that the divisions have now been planned on a basis which, so far as can be foreseen, will diminish the probability of any radical alterations being required at an early date.

Changes in local boundaries

23. One feature in the situation which has materially increased the difficulty of the task assigned to the Commission, so far as the Cape Province is concerned, involving protracted inquiries in various quarters, and much investigation of minute detail, has been the frequency of changes in boundaries other than electoral. The boundaries of municipalities and municipal wards, of fiscal divisions and field cornetcies, are often convenient to follow, both for purposes of description and facilities of registration, and also owing to the presumed community of interest, or habits of association, of persons residing within such areas. Unfortunately they appear, like the world of Heraclitus, to be in a state of perpetual flux.

City of Capetown.

24. The City of Capetown, for instance, when it was one constituency, returning seven members to the Cape Parliament, was divided into eight polling districts, six of which corresponded to the six wards of the city, the other two (Green and Sea Point and Robben Island) being outside the Municipality. The electors were registered under these districts. In 1909, however, when the first Union delimitation was proceeding, Capetown was re-divided into eight wards and, in the registration of 1911, these wards have taken the place, as registration areas, of the former six polling districts. The Commission have accordingly utilized them for purposes of description, endeavouring, wherever practicable, to make the boundaries of the electoral divisions coincide with those of the wards. Hardly, however, had this portion of the scheme been prepared, when a "Draft Unification Ordinance" for the Peninsula was published, by which it is now proposed to re-divide the city into six wards. Similarly, after prolonged inquiries, various changes, which appeared to be requisite, had been effected in the electoral divisions of Griqualand West, based on the present municipal and ward boundaries of Kimberley and Beaconsfield. No sooner had this been done than a Proclamation was issued (No. 252 of 1912,

Kimberley and Beaconsfield.

Provincial Gazette, 22nd November) recasting such boundaries, owing to the unification of the two municipalities. It appeared, however, as the result of further inquiries, that the scheme as drafted was not directly affected thereby. Beaconsfield, as a separate organism, has disappeared, and the electoral boundaries have been changed; but it was decided, in accordance with local sentiment, to make no alteration in the name of the division. Stat magni nominis umbra.

25. Much greater embarrassments were, in some instances, caused by the creation of new fiscal divisions and also by the exercise of the privilege enjoyed by Divisional Councils of altering their boundaries by mutual consent. Provision, for instance, was made under the Cape Act No. 39 of 1906 for the formation of the two new fiscal divisions of Maraisburg and Pearston. The proposed divisions were both small areas, containing about 400 voters, hitherto administered from Cradock and Somerset East, with an additional magistrate stationed locally. While the former Commission were engaged on their labours, an inquiry was made by the Government as to whether there was any objection to the Act being then put into effect, and the Commission, for obvious reasons, strongly recommended its postponement till their task was completed. The new divisions, however, have now been constituted, and the names and boundaries of the new field cornetcies given and defined by a long series of proclamations, issued in the course of 1911 (see Proclamations 160 and 162 of 1911, Union Gazette, 30th June, and Proclamations 207-222 of 1911, Provincial Gazette, 26th September). These arrangements, however, were effected subsequent to the registration of that year, the register being compiled on the old basis. The upshot is that voters registered in 36 field cornetcies in six fiscal divisions are now split up between 48 field cornetcies of eight fiscal divisions. The alterations in boundaries are numerous, intricate, and in some cases minute enough to be extremely troublesome, but not sufficiently minute to be ignored. A high degree of accuracy in such matters is obviously desirable.

New fiscal divisions.

26. A more unfortunate and inconvenient date—the Commission on this occasion was not boundaries :

the case of Pearston.

consulted on the subject—for this kaleidoscopic process, effected, as it was, between the registration of 1911 and the delimitation of 1912, could scarcely have been chosen. The Commission might doubtless have ignored this inopportune administrative action and proceeded on the old local divisions as specified in the register; but, while thus simplifying their immediate task, this would only have left the tangled skein for others to unravel in the immediate future. A more serious consequence would have been that the new electoral divisions, constituted on that basis, would have involved much splitting-up of a considerable number of field cornetcies and several fiscal divisions, while the Commission have sought to adhere to the policy of their predecessors in avoiding such splitting, and endeavouring to consolidate such areas, for electoral purposes, whenever practicable (see par. 32 of former Report, sub fine). The electoral division of Graaff-Reinet, for instance, might have been described as comprising the fiscal division of Graaff-Reinet; but that division, as formerly constituted, includes the field cornetcy of Buffels Hoek, then containing 165 voters, of whom either seventeen or fifteen—there is a discrepancy in the information supplied from different quarters on this, as on many similar points of detail—have been transferred to the new field cornetcy of Plat Rivier in the new fiscal division of Pearston. The result would have been that the electoral division would have included, say, seventeen voters in the fiscal division of Pearston, whilst the remaining eight voters in the same field cornetcy (Plat Rivier) would have fallen within the electoral division of Somerset. Similarly, three voters having been transferred from the field cornetcy of Lootskloof, fiscal division of Jansenville, to a new field cornetcy of Lootskloof, containing a grand aggregate of sixteen voters, in the division of Pearston, it was found that the whole description of boundaries of the new electoral division of Somerset had in consequence to be recast. To put it shortly, the genesis, after prolonged travail, of the petty division of Pearston has proved the prolific source of endless perplexities. The mountains have been in labour; the product has been a sort of Protean mouse. The voters, with the troublesome but numerically insignificant exceptions above referred to, all appear to have been taken from one field cornetcy of Somerset East; but there were discrepancies between the number of voters reported by Somerset and Graaff-Reinet respectively to have been transferred to Pearston and the number which Pearston acknowledged as having been delivered. Various consequential changes had to be made in the computation of electorates, the delineation of maps, and the corresponding description of areas in the schedule.

27. Similar complications, involving a number of petty changes, occurred in the case of Maraisburg, affecting the neighbouring fiscal divisions of Middelburg, Cradock, Tarka, and Queenstown. It is no exaggeration to say that the resolution of problems of the nature indicated in this and the previous paragraph occupied for some months a substantial portion of the time, amounting in the aggregate to a considerable number of working days, of the Chairman and Secretary of the Commission. References had to be made to the Department of the Interior; the Interior suggested that application should be made to the Department of Justice, which maintained an attitude of discreet reticence, or proverbial blindness, on the whole topic. The resources of the Lands Department and the office of the Surveyor-General had to be invoked; correspondence proceeded with Civil Commissioners, who called in aid a troop of field cornets; the files grew in number and in bulk; "reconciliations" were attempted with varying fortunes; and it can only be hoped, rather than confidently asserted, that the task of grappling, statistically and topographically, with the chaos of areas and units thus engendered has in the end been more or less successfully achieved.

The case of Maraisburg.

28. Another typical case of a somewhat similar kind may perhaps be cited. Among the suggestions received by the Commission were strong representations from the inhabitants of the fiscal division of Montagu, who made an urgent, and indeed peremptory, demand for their consolidation in one electoral division. At present four of the Montagu field cornetcies fall within the electoral division of Swellendam, while the remaining two, containing 218 voters, are in the adjacent division of Worcester. We were informed that "if the state of affairs as at present is allowed to continue it would be as well

The plight of

to disfranchise all the residents of the district"—a drastic measure which the Commission had neither the power nor desire to adopt. Every effort, as already explained, has been made, whenever practicable, to consolidate both fiscal divisions and field cornetcies, which had previously, while the Cape was a separate colony, often been parcelled between different constituencies, in the same electoral divisions. On the present occasion, a good deal of trouble was taken to frame a scheme, giving effect to the representations of Montagu, and also to those received from the field cornetcy of Achter Hex River, in the fiscal division of Worcester, which had given good reasons for its desire to be included in that constituency. After much contrivance, it was believed that these efforts had been rewarded with success. At the last moment, however, it was discovered that, by Proclamation 194 of 1911, a considerable number of voters had been transferred from one of the field cornetcies of Robertson to that of Montagu, making the proposed changes so far as the latter was concerned, statistically inadmissible.

Local
representations.

29. The Commission would like it to be clearly understood that in this and various other cases, which it would be tedious to enumerate, where representations have been made in favour of alterations for which, taken by themselves, a fair case was made out, and such representations have not been complied with, it has been through no failure on their part to do their best to satisfy local exigencies. All suggestions have been carefully considered; but in some instances it has been found impossible to give effect to them without detrimental consequences in other areas of a graver character than those involved in the existing arrangements to which exception was taken.

Illustration :
The Colonial Office and the New Hebrides.

30. Some years ago, when the Australian Commonwealth was anxious to secure British control of the New Hebrides, it was suggested that possession might be secured "by some readjustment, whether of territory or privileges, elsewhere." Some such arrangement, it was explained, would cause great satisfaction in Australia. To this ingenuous suggestion Mr. Secretary Lyttelton replied that "the Government have to take into account not only the satisfaction which would be felt in Australia if the New Hebrides could be secured to the Empire by some concession elsewhere, but also the dissatisfaction which would be felt in the part of His Majesty's dominions at whose expense the concession was made." The Commission have had constantly to bear in mind not only the satisfaction which would be felt in this or that division, could this or that field cornetcy, or other area, be transferred, but also the legitimate dissatisfaction which the consequential changes would inevitably produce in other quarters.

31. It may here be added that, in one or two instances, suggestions have been received by, or referred to, the Commission, made by local officials in Natal and the Orange Free State, as to the advisability, from the point of view of administrative convenience, of altering the existing boundaries of certain electoral wards and polling areas. Such changes would apparently in some cases facilitate the preparation of the voters' roll and the provision of suitable polling stations; but it was conceived that any recommendation on the subject scarcely fell within the scope of the inquiry and that it would be better to leave such matters for departmental adjustment, if thought desirable, after its completion.

Natal and the Orange Free State : electoral subdivisions.

32. In the Province of Natal, where the law provides for an annual registration, usually completed about the beginning of September, some question arose as to which register should be taken as the basis of the scheme. The Commission having been appointed in March, 1912, the register for 1911-12 was "the last registration of voters" then available, in terms of section 40 (1) of the Act. It seemed, moreover, in some respects convenient to proceed on a register as nearly as possible contemporaneous in the several Provinces; it was also clearly inadvisable to defer the prosecution of the preliminary inquiries necessary in Natal till the results of the new registration, for 1912-13, had been obtained. Steps, however, were taken to procure the figures of the latter enumeration as soon as available, in order to ascertain whether there had occurred, in any portions of the Province, such substantial movements of voters as to make any modifications, not inconsistent with the quota as already ascertained, desirable in the scheme as drafted. It appeared, however, that the increase in the total number of voters was quite nominal—

The Natal
register.

forty-five for the House and ten for the Council—and that on the whole no advantage, but rather the reverse, would be derived from proceeding in Natal on a later register than that available elsewhere.

The quota in Natal.

33. On the 1911 register, as already mentioned, only one parliamentary division (Weenen) was below the statutory minimum, while none was above the maximum. On that of 1912, Weenen was still below the minimum, while Durban (Greyville) and Pietermaritzburg North slightly exceeded the maximum. On the 1911 list for the Provincial Council, three Durban divisions (Congella, Greyville, and West Street) exceeded the maximum, Dundee contained exactly the maximum, while three country divisions (Umzimkulu, Victoria County, and Vryheid) fell below the minimum. On the 1912 register, while the Provincial Council division of Dundee has fallen slightly below the maximum, the three Durban divisions are still above it and the three country constituencies still below the minimum, while two of the divisions of Pietermaritzburg have also slightly surpassed the maximum. It would obviously have been impossible to take the former register as determining the quota in some cases and the latter in others; and on the whole it seemed better, as involving the least disturbance of existing boundaries, to adhere throughout to the voters' list as framed in 1911. As has already been pointed out, cases will inevitably occur in the other Provinces in which the result of subsequent registrations will show similar movements before the next election, should the present Parliament run its natural course and not be dissolved before 1915.

The Provincial

34. Only one slight change has been found necessary in the boundaries of the Natal parliamentary divisions; but a considerable number of small alterations, involving much investigation of detail, have been requisite in those of the Provincial Council. The boundaries as fixed have in all cases been prepared after consultation with the officials—magistrates and field cornets—best acquainted with the circumstances of each locality. The description of some of the divisions has been a work of considerable difficulty. The descriptions appended to the report of the first Commission were based on the then existing parliamentary divisions and electoral wards of the Colony. References in some cases were then found necessary to magisterial divisions, boundaries of counties, locations, and mission stations. Since then the new divisions have been divided into different wards for parliamentary and provincial purposes, and it proved impossible to procure maps on which all the relevant boundaries, both new and old, were clearly indicated. It is believed, however, that the descriptions and maps contained in Appendices II and III will be found to indicate with sufficient precision the changes which have been effected.

35. It may be permissible to point out that the work of this, as of the previous Commission, as far as Natal and the Orange Free State are concerned, has been complicated, to an extent which without actual experience it would be difficult to realize, by the necessity of framing a separate scheme, with a lower quota, for the Provincial Councils. The original proposal of the Committee of the Convention on the subject was that the Provincial Council in each Province should "consist of the same number of members as are elected for the House of Assembly in the Province." The arrangement subsequently arrived at, constituting seventeen Parliamentary and twenty-five Provincial Council divisions was apparently the result of representations made by delegates from Natal; but as the result of inquiries, both in Natal and the Orange Free State, the Commission are disposed to think that, were the matter reconsidered and the same principle adopted as in the larger Provinces, the Councils would not be found too small as organic bodies, or insufficiently equipped for the due discharge of their functions, while the work, both of delimitation and registration, would be greatly simplified.

Number of Provincial Councillors.

36. With regard to registration, the Commission, on the present as on the previous occasion, have been much impressed with the practical inconveniences arising from anomalies in the systems existing in the various Provinces, many of which, it is conceived, might be removed without abrogating any of the principles laid down in the South Africa Act. It is obviously desirable that registration throughout the Union should be as far as possible simultaneous, and that any future commission should be placed in possession of the system of registration.

The

most recent statistics on the subject. At present, in the Transvaal and Orange Free State, so far as the European population is concerned, there is an adult male suffrage, based on residence. At the Cape, the franchise depends on occupation or salary, and those who enjoy both qualifications, in different divisions, may register in either but not in both. This option in certain cases of community of interest—e.g. that of the employees at the railway workshops at Salt River—affords facilities for common action for political purposes not enjoyed, for example, at Pretoria, where voters of a similar class are scattered throughout the city and have to be registered at their place of abode. In Natal, the right to vote depends on the ownership or occupation of property of a certain value, and the elector may vote in all the divisions in which he possesses such qualification. There is also a lodger franchise, with certain conditions as to salary and residence attached. It is to be hoped that any legislation which may be introduced on the subject will aim at securing similarity and simultaneity of procedure and, so far as possible, with regard to European voters, of qualifications, throughout the Union.

Representation of the Transvaal.

37. The Transvaal, as has already been pointed out, is entitled to nine additional members, making the total number of electoral divisions for that Province forty-five. These nine seats have been allocated as follows:

Five to the Witwatersrand area,
Three to the rural districts, and
One to Pretoria,

The Witwatersrand.

with the inclusion of several of the suburbs to the north of the town. The quota of the Witwatersrand, on the above basis, is approximately seven per cent. above, that of the remainder of the Province, including Pretoria, seven per cent. below the quota of the Province as a whole. The European population of the former district is of greater density than that contained in any other portion of the Union. It should also be borne in mind that it is to a great extent a floating population. Displacements and removals, attributable to fluctuations in the demand for labour, the volume of business and the conditions of trade, to the development of mining operations in one quarter, the exhaustion or closing down of similar propositions in another, are of such frequent occurrence that the register affords little guidance to the voting power actually available at an election, even when the latter occurs comparatively shortly after the completion of the former.

38. In order to create these new constituencies, it has been found necessary to make changes of a substantial nature in the boundaries of nearly all the existing electoral divisions. Out of the full number of thirty-six, it has been found possible to leave only two divisions, Lydenburg and Zoutpansberg, undisturbed. In these, though the numbers are somewhat high as compared with most of the other country divisions, there appeared to be no necessity for making any alteration. In all cases where changes have been made in the present rural constituencies the main objects which have been kept in view have been, in the first place to disturb the present boundaries no more than was actually necessary, and secondly to make the boundaries of the electoral divisions coincide as nearly as possible with those of the magisterial districts. In the result it will be found that the electoral divisions and the magisterial districts now correspond much more closely than they did under the previous delimitation.

boundaries.

39. Very strong representations were made to the Commission by the Unionist Political Association, advocating radical changes in the delimitation of the divisions of Barberton and Lydenburg. It was contended that the present arrangement under which the magisterial district of Barberton is linked with that of Carolina is open to very serious objections, seeing that the two districts are separated from one another by a mountain barrier, that the means of communication are very inadequate, and that there is very little intercourse or community of interest between them, the great bulk of the inhabitants of Carolina being stock farmers while the majority in Barberton are engaged or interested in the mining industry or agricultural pursuits. The former, it was stated, have their business connections with the port of Durban, the latter with that of Delagoa Bay. For these reasons we were pressed to cut off Carolina from Barberton and to constitute a new division consisting of the following areas, namely, the magisterial district of

and Lydenburg.

Barberton, the gold fields of Sabie and Pilgrims Rest, several other polling districts in Lydenburg extending along the southern boundary of the division to the west of Machadodorp and one polling district in Carolina immediately south of Machadodorp containing 300 voters. In this manner it was urged that a division would be formed free to a great extent from the objections to which the present arrangement is open, and able to return a representative of the interests of those who are engaged in gold mining in the eastern Transvaal.

The position of Barberton.

40. The Commission fully recognize that the present constitution of the Barberton electoral division is far from satisfactory, and that serious objections may be urged against it. It was one of the most difficult problems which the former Commission was called upon to solve, and one of which no solution, which can be regarded as entirely satisfactory, is at present attainable. Barberton is a self-contained district, cut off to a great extent from the rest of the Province—mountains, they say, divide us, and a waste of peaks—and it should, if possible, as in the former Transvaal Parliament, have a member of its own. Unfortunately the number of voters in the district is only 1159, which is only about half of what is required under the Act to constitute an electoral division. It is necessary, therefore, to obtain approximately an equal number of voters from one or other of the adjoining districts of Carolina and Lydenburg, which are the only two that border upon it. The problem was most fully and anxiously considered by the last Commission. A meeting was held at Machadodorp which was largely attended by representatives from all the districts concerned, belonging to both of the leading political associations. The whole question was exhaustively investigated, and after a most careful consideration of the case the Commission, upon the information then before it, decided that the least unsatisfactory arrangement would be to link Carolina with Barberton, leaving the old magisterial district of Lydenburg intact. The present Commission have been invited, after a lapse of less than three years, to reverse that decision, to separate Carolina from Barberton, and to cut up both of the magisterial districts of Lydenburg and Carolina. In view of the importance attached by the Commission to the preservation of existing electoral boundaries, for the reasons set forth in paragraph 16 supra, it was felt that it would require very cogent reasons to justify, in this particular instance, the somewhat sweeping changes which the adoption of the suggestions under consideration would necessarily entail.

41. Had the number of voters in this part of the Province increased to such an extent that an electoral division could have been constituted by adding to the district of Barberton the low-lying portion of Lydenburg to the east of the Drakensberg which contains the gold mining areas of Sabie and Pilgrims Rest, it would have been difficult to resist a demand for a revision of the present arrangement, even at the expense of cutting up the old magisterial district of Lydenburg. That, however, is not the position at present, as the voters in the area indicated fall short of the required number by at least six hundred. This deficiency, it is suggested, should be made up by taking a slice containing about three hundred voters from the southern boundary of Lydenburg and cutting off from Carolina a polling district with an equal number of voters. The objections to this course are so obvious that it is unnecessary to enlarge upon them. Amongst other things it involves the mutilation of both the magisterial districts of Lydenburg and Carolina instead of leaving them intact as at present. The result would be to form one electoral division consisting of Barberton, about one-third of Lydenburg, and about one-third of Carolina, and another division made up of two-thirds of Lydenburg and two-thirds of Carolina. The problem might have been solved in a similar way by the previous Commission, but though it was recognized that there were serious objections to the present arrangement, they were deemed to be on the whole of less weight than those involved in any alternative scheme that could be suggested.

Statistical and topographical objections to proposed revision.

42. The question which thus arose for determination was whether there had occurred in the interval since the former Report, to put the matter in mathematical terms, such an alteration in the factors as to affect the equation. In the first place, it may be urged that the number of electors in the district of Barberton, and in the mining districts of Lydenburg, has somewhat increased, and approximates somewhat more closely to the minimum required to constitute an electoral division; the difference however in this respect can scarcely be regarded as very material. A more substantial point is that the means of communication between Barberton and the Lydenburg gold fields have been improved by the railway which is in course of construction between Nelspruit and Graskop and by the road from Nelspruit to Barberton. But it appears that facilities of this nature have also been increased by the repair at considerable expense of the road from Barberton across the mountains to Carolina, and these two facts may to a great extent be set off against one another. A still more important element, in the case as now submitted, is that, while on the last occasion the Commission was led to believe that the mining community of Pilgrims Rest was in favour of remaining in the Lydenburg electoral division, the present Commission has been assured that the contrary is the case. Memorials were submitted, numerous signed by electors residing in Pilgrims Rest and Sabie engaged in the mining industry, or in business pursuits, urging that they should be attached to Barberton for electoral purposes. Whether or not petitions to the contrary might be obtained, were time given for that purpose, it is impossible to say; but there seems little doubt that at any rate a considerable majority of the electors of these gold fields would prefer to be associated with Barberton rather than with Lydenburg. This no doubt is a new factor in the situation, and the views of these voters are entitled to consideration. But here again the difficulty presents itself that their number is so inconsiderable that, when they are added to Barberton, there is still a deficiency of about six hundred voters, which, as already pointed out, has to be supplied by cutting off considerable portions of the high veld from Lydenburg and Carolina.

New factors in problem.

Political considerations.

43. It is an unfortunate circumstance that the Barberton problem appears to be a subject of keen party controversy, and the view has been expressed that, seeing that the whole of the rest of the rural part of the Province is solid in favour of one party, an arrangement which would probably give one country seat to the opposite party has much to recommend it. These are not, however, considerations by which the Commission could be influenced. Somewhat similar questions have arisen in the Witwatersrand area. It was there pointed out by representatives of the various political associations, with whom the schemes drafted by the Commission were fully and frankly discussed, that these proposals might have certain effects on the political complexion—as for instance between the South African Party and the Labour interests—of this or that division. Similar points were raised with regard to Pretoria. The Commission, however, felt bound to confine their attention to the considerations laid down in section 39 of the Act.

44. There is indeed much to be said, from the point of view of community of interests, for the creation of a constituency, on the lines suggested, which would be in a position to send to Parliament a representative of the gold mining interests in the Province other than those concentrated on the Witwatersrand. The policy in favour with the miners of De Kaap and Pilgrims Rest, their special standpoint and requirements with regard, for instance, to such matters as the construction of railways or the supply of labour, may differ very materially from the views of Johannesburg. Should the above-mentioned areas continue to prosper and increase in numbers, such a course may be found possible by the next Commission. In existing conditions, after prolonged deliberation and anxious consideration, from every point of view, of this difficult problem, your Commissioners have, with some reluctance, arrived at the conclusion that a sufficiently strong case for disturbing the electoral boundaries, as at present defined, has not been established.

Representation of mining interests.

45. The former Commission, in discussing certain suggestions submitted to them, with a view to obtaining some representation of minorities in the Orange Free State, had occasion to observe that “the case submitted, no doubt, may be regarded as involving a substantial grievance, for which, however, like many others, under the method of single-member constituencies, and in the absence of some system of proportional representation, it is not within the province of the Commission to suggest a remedy” (paragraph 29). A similar observation may be regarded as applicable to the present controversy.

Representation of minorities.

46. With regard to the Orange Free State, on the present occasion there is very little to be said.

The Orange Free State.

If the absence of electoral history is a test of provincial felicity, that province since Union appears to occupy an enviable position. The register, it may be observed, on which the delimitation has been based is there somewhat more recent than that which it was necessary to adopt in the other provinces. For reasons explained in the former report, while the Transvaal and the Cape have a biennial registration, the last available being that of 1911, and Natal an annual registration, the register adopted as a basis being that of 1911-12, the Orange Free State has a biennial voters' list, framed, owing to the date of its constitution, a year later than that of the Transvaal. The Commission had before them, shortly after beginning their work, the results of the registration completed early in 1912, showing a considerable increase as compared with the number of voters registered in 1910. But all the divisions, on this recent register, both for the House of Assembly and the Provincial Council, fell within the statutory limits, and it has consequently been unnecessary to make any substantial changes in the existing boundaries. In a few instances, however, it has been feasible, after consultation with the local authorities, to effect slight statistical improvements. In one or two other cases where alterations, from that point of view, seemed prima facie desirable, it has been decided, in view of local representations as to community or diversity of interests and facilities of communication, to retain the status quo.

New rural divisions in the Transvaal.

47. The three new divisions which have been formed in the rural portion of the Transvaal Province are those of Bethal, Klerksdorp, and Witwatersberg. Each of these was an electoral division under the Transvaal delimitation of 1906, and each, as now constituted, follows in the main upon the lines of that scheme, though additions have had to be made in order to provide the necessary number of voters. The division of Bethal consists of the magisterial district of that name with the inclusion of three polling districts from Heidelberg and two from Middelburg. Klerksdorp is made up of the old electoral division of that name, with the addition of two polling districts from the old electoral division of Ventersdorp and six from Wolmaransstad. Lastly, Witwatersberg will be constituted of the old electoral division of that name with the addition of two polling districts from Rustenburg and one from Pretoria. It is unnecessary to refer in detail to the changes which have been made in the existing country divisions, as these sufficiently appear from the Appendices and the Maps attached to this Report.

48. In the town of Pretoria there has been a considerable increase of population, but not sufficient to justify the Commission in forming three electoral divisions in the area at present covered by the divisions of Pretoria East and Pretoria West. By the inclusion, however, of about nine hundred voters residing in the suburbs to the north of the town, the required number is obtained, so that a third urban division has been constituted which will be known as Pretoria Central.

49. In the Witwatersrand area the growth of population has been very great. In the electoral division of Springs the number of voters is nearly double what it was at the date of the previous delimitation, and in every instance the increase has been considerable. The five new divisions which have been allotted to this area will be known as Benoni, Hospital, Ophirton, Randfontein, and Siemert. No useful object would be served by referring in detail to the manner in which each of these has been built up. In no instance has there been any serious principle at stake in defining their several boundaries.

50. Before finally settling the delimitation of this area meetings were held which were attended by deputations from the various political associations. Two alternative provisional schemes had been drafted by the Commission, and after meeting the first deputation it was felt that the work would be greatly facilitated if these schemes were submitted to the representatives of the political associations for their consideration and criticisms. This was accordingly done, and a number of suggestions were made which have been carefully considered by the Commission. Seeing that these suggestions came from three bodies holding different political opinions, it is needless to say that it was found quite impossible to adopt them all, but some of them have been utilized; and though no very radical alterations have been made in the draft scheme which was adopted by the Commission, it has no doubt been improved by such modifications as have been introduced.

Alterations in name of divisions.

51. In consequence of the considerable changes which were found necessary in the boundaries of several of the electoral divisions, it has been deemed desirable to alter the names in some instances, as the old names appeared unsuitable for the divisions as now constituted. Thus Bezuidenhout has been substituted for Jeppe, Maraisburg for Roodepoort, and Parktown for Braamfontein.

Springs and Turffontein.

52. It has been found necessary for statistical reasons to cut off one of the polling districts of Springs and one of Turffontein for inclusion in the rural districts. The former is within the magisterial district of Pretoria; the latter was within the old electoral division of Witwatersberg. At the last delimitation they were included in the Witwatersrand area for statistical purposes, and each of them is now for the same reason restored to its original position.

Recommendations.

53. It so happens that all the members of the present Commission also sat on that appointed in 1909, and they derived considerable assistance in their work from the experience then acquired. An interval of some four years will elapse before there will be occasion for the appointment of another judicial Commission for the same purpose, and it seems improbable that the services of any of your present Commissioners will be then available. We hope, therefore, that it may not be regarded as supererogatory if we venture to append, for the consideration of the Government and the Legislature, one or two suggestions, the adoption of which would, in our judgment, for reasons already indicated, be of assistance to our successors when engaged on similar work. We think that:—

(1) The system of registration and electoral qualifications, so far as European voters are concerned, should be made as simple and uniform as possible.

(2) The number of members of the Provincial Council should, in all the provinces, be the same as that of the members of the House of Assembly.

(3) In section 40 (3) of the South Africa Act twenty per cent. should be substituted for fifteen per cent.

(4) So far as possible, alterations in boundaries other than electoral should not be effected between the last preceding registration and the next ensuing delimitation.

54. There is one point on which, to avoid any possible misconception, it may be permissible to add a word of explanation. The Commission was appointed at the end of March last, or nearly eleven months ago. This period may at first sight appear unduly protracted ; but it should be borne in mind that the judicial functions of the Commissioners have meanwhile occupied most of their time. As a matter of fact there have been only three months (October, December, and January) in which they have been comparatively free from such duties and able to concentrate their attention on the subject of this report.

Period of inquiry.

55. Subjoined will be found appendices comprising (1) an alphabetical list of electoral divisions; (2) schedules containing descriptions of the boundaries of all divisions ; and (3) various illustrative maps prepared in accordance with the provisions of section 42 of the South Africa Act. The Commission desire to acknowledge the assistance which they have received from the Surveyors-General of the four provinces and the departmental officers whose services have been placed at their disposal. Much useful help has been obtained from magistrates and other officials, of which the Commission desire to record their appreciation. The important duties of the secretary have been discharged by Mr. E. R. Roper (Assistant Registrar of the Supreme Court, Appellate Division) in a manner deserving commendation.
